

IT'S MORE THAN A RIDE TO TREATMENT. IT'S A RIDE TO HOPE.

If you have cancer, you need to go to treatment. But that can become difficult. You want to drive yourself, yet that's no longer possible. As much as your family, friends, and caregivers try, there are times they just can't drive you to your next appointment. But you have to keep going.

The fact is transportation can be one of the biggest roadblocks to cancer care. That's why the American Cancer Society Road To Recovery program is dedicated to helping you get a ride to treatment when you need it.

As a network of survivors, people who have been touched by this disease, and those in your community who just want to help, this program has provided more than 6.3 million rides over the past 30 years.

Approved by the American Cancer Society, each of the volunteers has what it takes to give you a ride to treatment: training, spare time, and a car with a passenger seat. And they're donating them to you.

Of course, every cancer diagnosis is a personal journey, but we want you to know that you don't have to face it alone.
